

SOCIAL MEDICINE HOUSING @ 150 DUNN AVE

Welcoming a new supportive housing model in Parkdale

The housing crisis in Toronto impacts us all. Many are struggling to find affordable and decent housing.

Some Torontonians are more affected due to experiencing housing challenges combined with chronic, complex health conditions and other needs.

Neighbours can show support for this vital project by learning more together, sharing ideas to welcome new tenants, or coming to our next community event!

Find out more about our community engagement work at westnh.org/150Dunn

Connect with your neighbours on the 150 Dunn Ave Welcome Committee
<https://www.facebook.com/welcome150dunn>

For more information, contact:

Lorraine | 416-277-3953

Beryl-Ann | 437-332-7257

Angela | angelako@westnh.org

The first social medicine housing in Canada is being built at 150 Dunn Avenue, a collaboration between University Health Network (UHN), the City of Toronto and United Way of Greater Toronto.

This project will provide 51 unhoused neighbours in Toronto with a place to call home, while integrating service delivery and healthcare access on-site to help tenants stabilize, recover, and heal. It aims to go beyond traditional supportive housing as an innovative, new approach to providing care.

Parkdale has a long-standing history of welcoming new neighbours and is proud to be a home for so many diverse groups of people.

The 150 Dunn project continues our tradition of working together as a community to respond to problems like the housing crisis. Parkdale Planning Table partners supporting diverse, affordable housing options like 150 Dunn include :

Social Medicine integrates the social determinants of health (e.g. housing, food) into care delivery and partners with community organizations to improve the quality of care for populations with unmet health needs.

This project is made possible through the generous support of:

